Happy International Women in Engineering Day!

We're proud of our amazing, diverse team of female engineers, who play a pivotal role in developing technology solutions that help prevent crime and terrorism.

They are leading.
They are innovative.
They are inspiring.

We are pleased to share NSO Group's first Annual Transparency & Responsibility Report, published today.

The Report is a significant part of our longstanding commitment for compliance and for the balance between public safety and human rights. It provides an outline of our guiding principles, and our ever-evolving efforts to assure that our products are used only as they were always intended – to save lives through the prevention of serious crime and acts of terror. We are proud to lead the cyber intelligence industry's public conversation on these issues, and welcome the opportunity to continue conducting fruitful engagements with all the stakeholders in this sphere.
